THE CITY.

Notice to Subscribers.

The Express will be delivered hereafter, on the route between Fourth and Tenth streets, by Henry Hargrave, to whom payment should be made.

More Cars.

A large came across the river this morning from the Ohio Falls car factory, containing six new freight cars for the Nashville road.

Cheap Fruit.

It is reported that fruit is so abundant in Crawford county, Ind., that apples are sold for more than ten cents per bushel, and peaches for twelve cents. Send it over this way.

Going to Shelly.

The contractors of the Shelly branch railroad have been all this week gathering up laborers. From fifty to one hundred men have left every day this week, and the work will be commenced at once.

Police Matters.

The Chief of Police reports two hundred and ninety-six arrests by the police during the month of September. One hundred and thirteen were for felonies and one hundred and eightytwo for misdemeanors.

On the Bridge.

A locomotive went out on the great bridge this morning as far as the track has been laid, and that was to the north end of the span over the Kentucky clute. No jar nor oscillation marked its passage, the bridge seeming as solid as the rocky bed of the river one hundred feet below.

Excitement.

A pistol-shot in a quiet neighborhood will be very apt to create considerable excitement, and so it did this morning, at the corner of Washington and Preston streets, calling together a crowd of anxious people, but when it was found that the shot was accidental and no harm resulted, the crowd dispersed.

Redeemed at Last.

Charles Bell redeemed all his transks yesterday evening, or rather a friend did for him, but not until after a constable put another levy on them for ten dollars and costs. His total expenses, resulting from not paying Mrs. Shannon's bill, will be about fifty dollars. But he has gone on his way, glad to escape the lynching law-officers of this city.

More New Albany Mysteries.

New Albany got up a little ghost story the other day, and now she has another mystery. At a very early hour Tuesday morning a carriage with all the curtains fastened down drove through upper Spring street at a furious rate. People living along the street say that they distinctly heard the shrieks of a woman in distress issuing from the carriage; but before any one could dress and pursue, the carriage turned into another street and was gone.

Tipped Over his Apple Cart.

And spilled all his pences." That was literally true yesterday evening, no matter how impossible it may appear. A countryman having a wagon loaded with apples and peaches was rather slow in crossing the railroad track at the intersection of Jackson and Jefferson, and a train came along, car end foremost, caught his wagon at the rear end, and tipped it over into the street. Apples and peaches were abundant and very low just about then, and countless children availed themselves of that fall of fruit.

Louisville Opera House.

The Lottery of Life was presented last night for the third time to a large and greatly interested audience. As the members of the company become familiar with their parts, understand all the points and see all the peculiarities of character and situation, they are able to enter into the author's idea more thoroughly, and the consequence is that the play grows on the good-will of the public. But after night it will be withdrawn, so that all who have not seen it would do well to secure seats.

Church Music.

We are indebted to Prof. C. G. St. Clair, formerly organist at St. John's church, Utica, N. Y., but now located in Louisville, for some church music composed in English and Latin words. The latter we have not had time to examine, but the opening quartette is very fine. There can be no doubt Prof. St. Clair is a musician and composer of very great attainments, and Louisville is fortunate in securing him as on addition to her already large list of talented ones.

Evening of Sacred Song.

THE TURF.

Woodlawn Course--Fine Sport Promised.

It is very seldom our music-loving people have such an opportunity as will be offered to-night at Weisiger Hall. Mr. Philip Phillips, musician and composer, of New York, will give one of his new world-renowned evenings of sacred song. His "evenings" have given great delight to audiences of thousands in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and other large cities in this country, and especially in London, Liverpool, Dublin and other large European cities. Just think of the audience that crowded Spurgeon's Tabernacle in London, with its seating capacity of seven thousand—all subdued to tears with one of Mr. Phillips' exquisitely pathetic songs, sung in his own inimitable style—or lifted off their feet by his electric rendering of the "Rescue," a song descriptive of storm, ship-wreck and the lifeboat. The great beauty of his music in its high, pure, sacred character. Mr. Phillips is a devoted Christian, who, knowing that he has received from the Master a talent of inestimable value—has devoted that talent and all the energies of an earnest manhood to the service of that master, and makes it his daily meat and drink—his joy—his greatest happiness to persuade, by precept and example, all other human beings to use their talents to the best of their ability in the same service.

Mr. Phillips has a voice of great excellence. His utterance is clear and distinct. Every note and syllable can be heard in the remotest corner of the hall. He suits his music to his words, and then renders both to the ear as to move the hearts of his audience as only a master can. We advise all who take delight in sacred music, both old and young, parents and children, to attend at Weisiger Hall-to-night, and go early.

From the New York World, 28th.

Wall street is yet in a muddle. It was yesterday one scene of excitement, turmoil, boil and bubble, bubble and boil, full of rumors, doubts and uncertainty. Money was tight. No person knew whom to trust, or who was going under next. The stock market was feverish and panicky. Values changed upon every whisper, and everything appeared to be in a condition ready for another grand tumble. The leading firms in the late gold clique were compelled to keep guards around their establishments, fearing an attack of the exasperated bears. Nothing was done all the gaiety of bon rascals. Their principal firms are ruined.

The brokers who have been smashed in the fray are frantic with excitement. The larger firms can creep up the ladder again, but the majority of the unfortunate street speculators are ruined for life.

The greater part of them put every cent into this second South Sea bubble, and are swept away in the general wreck.

They meet each other by instinct and shake hands consolingly, but that is all.

There are no invitations to taste a bottle of Veuve Cliquot now; oh, deuce, no, they have lost all the gaiety of bon rascals.

LOUISVILLE.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1859.
M. S. MCORKLE,

The Progress of Journalism.

The discovery of the mariner's compass produced not a greater revolution in the navigation of the pathless waters of the earth; nor gunpowder in the conduct of armies upon the field of battle; nor printing in the dissemination of learning among the nations, than did the telegraph in the publishing of newspapers. The time of a single generation on the earth has not passed since the magnetic telegraph was invented. The first practical use of the great invention of Mr. Morse was upon a wire stretched from Baltimore to Washington in 1844. The quarter of a century which has since elapsed has been more wonderful, if possible, than any equal period of newspaper history.

Before the telegraph was put into operation we were dependent upon the mails for information of what transpired in places other than our own locality. We know not what was going on in New York until the mails brought us the papers which recorded the events of the day; and the people of that city had to await the arrival of vessels from Europe to be advised of what was passing in the older world. The newspapers of distant commercial points were awaited with anxiety before business men could decide as to prices, and there was no way to get the desired information except through the mails.

The telegraph has changed all this old order of things. The newspaper which is published in London to-day contains all the important events which transpire not only in the great cities of this country but also in the capitals of Europe. Those who have been reading the Express for the last few days know as much about the great gold excitement in New York as do the bulls and bears of Wall street. At the close of the gold exchange each day the people of New York know no more of what has been done than they did the readers of the Express in this city.

In this way the magnetic telegraph has wrought a tremendous revolution in journalism. It has effectually done away with the necessity of a citizen of Louisville incurring the expense of a New York paper, or a paper published in any other part of the world. One is compelled to take the papers of his own city for local news, and with this local news he gets foreign and domestic news from every important part of the world. The home newspaper tells him at once all that he can learn by awaiting the foreign journal that comes to him through the mails hours and days, and even weeks, after he has learned its news.

Our telegraphic column of to-day contains all that it is necessary to know of what occurred yesterday in London, Paris and the other great capitals of Europe. Has any one of our readers estimated what it would cost him to get this information in any other way? If he got it by the old manner, he would have the slow and costly process of a newspaper printed in each of these great cities and sent to him by mail. If he got it direct by telegraph, he would pay a dollar or two for each word. But in our paper he gets it all, and pays therefore only 75 cents per month. The cost is nothing for the information received.

If the telegraph has done more for newspapers than for any one thing. And it is to be hoped that it will do yet more for them in giving them the news from all parts of the world at a cheaper rate than now rules. Telegraphing is a heavy charge upon newspapers, and the burden can be and ought to be lightened. If it can be done no other way the government might take charge of the wires just as it has the mails. The newspapers would then get their news as they get their letters and the cost would not be anything like what it is as now managed.

With the telegraph in the hands of the government, like the mails, there would, moreover, be gotten rid of a grievous burden that now is imposed upon all who take the general dispatches. Rings and cliques and combinations are forever getting news over the wires and making public opinion in a way that is intolerable. Dispatches which ought to be nothing but news, are made to express and foster particular opinions in the interest of individuals or combinations. This would not probably be so bad under government management, and it certainly could not be worse. As the thing now stands, such combinations as the whisky ring, the Gold Exchange, the Stock Board, and others that might be named, use the telegraph for fostering their own corrupt schemes, and it is next to impossible for the newspapers of the country to resist them. Again, political opinions are also made by the dispatches, and newspapers are not unfrequently compelled to give publicity to principles at war with the doctrines they set themselves up to teach. There is scarcely anything in the land that is made to foster more rascality and to shield more villainy, than the magnetic telegraph, as now conducted.

And yet with all its evils we could do without almost anything as well as without the telegraph. It is the greatest thing for newspapers that has been invented since printing was discovered. It puts the journal of our day in immediate communication with all the civilized world. Indeed, with the telegraph at work, the whole world is the field of the editor of a newspaper. He gathers not his items from the city alone in which he dwells, but from every country and city and village and nook and corner of the habitable globe. A newspaper without telegraphic dispatches in our day would be a body without a soul—a skeleton without the beauteous dress of flesh and without the attractions of life.

It is hinted that the Japanese colony at Gold Hill, Cal., is much less successful than has been claimed by interested parties. A correspondent reports that there are but eight Japanese there; that the one hundred and forty "soon to arrive" never have embarked from their native land; that from the several million tea seeds brought by the colony, less than 130 plants have been produced, and these in a puny condition; and that only two of the several hundred mulberry trees brought are alive, the dry summer having killed the remainder.

The Halifax (Nova Scotia) Reformer says: "We shall shortly be set free and we will then be at liberty to take any direction we choose. There is one thing quite certain, and that is that as soon as the Dominion; as it is called, is set at liberty, and the red-coats and kits are withdrawn from this province, the people of Nova Scotia will take the liberty of walking out of the Confederation, or the infant independence of British America will be baptised with blood."

Levrenan, the astronomer, and one of the strongest reactionists in the French Senate, is said to have become a confirmed hypocondriac in consequence of the political reforms granted by the Emperor Napoleon, and which, he predicts, will result in the speedy overthrow of the empire and the proclamation of the Red Republic.

According to the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, a circle of devoted spiritualists in that city have interviewed Lord Byron, through a medium. The poet says that he has read Mrs. Stowe's article in the Atlantic Monthly, and that, for the most part, "it is a d—d lie." These are His Lordship's very words.

The Irish Catholic priesthood now urge their congregation to demand not only land reform, but a legislature that will attend to Irish affairs. They do not openly countenance Fenianism, but they significantly assert that the Irish are a too numerous people to bear persecution mildly much longer.

"Pion-Pion" is a great gymnast. When he visited this country in his yacht, some years ago, he used to call, sometimes, at the studio of Regis Gignoux, the landscape painter, where he would sport his muscle by putting up heavy dumb bells with great apparent ease.

The French historian, M. H. S. Bordier, comes forward to the defense of William Tell, lately historically extinguished, by discovering a wonderful man in the twelfth century, by name Williamus Talo, which furnishes the latest light on this all-important topic.

A LADY in San Francisco is having manufactured for the President an elegant watch-box, of solid gold, bearing upon one side the coat-of-arms of the State of California, and upon the other, the President's name.

AMONG Humboldt's papers there were found, after his death, over four thousand begging letters.

Under these circumstances there is much to be said on both sides as to the propriety of the interference by the Secretary of the Treasury, which enriches one man and impoverishes another according to the moment when it is made known, but which relieves the merchant for the time from the embarrassment which the gambling bout has caused him. If it were possible for the government by any act within the scope of its power to destroy utterly the wealth of the men who make a livelihood by these speculations the achievement would meet, perhaps, with general applause, but if every one of them were annihilated in person as well as in estate to-day there can be no doubt that a new set would arise to-morrow, and that the evil we deplore would be continued as long as the absence of any fixed standard of value gives an opportunity for it.

From the Boston Advertiser (Republican), September 25.

To whisper suspicion against the credit of a firm in ordinary times, is accounted the highest crime, if any doubt attaches to its truth; but in the turmoil of Friday we observe numbers of prominent houses in New York subjects of gossip more or less scandalous; good names made light of, censured, and all considerations of honor, stability, and reputation disregarded in rumors and reports circulated among the brokers and flashed over the wires to every daily paper in the country. And not the least of these alarming and sickening scandals involves the government itself. The Secretary of the Treasury is not merely censured, but openly accused of corruption. The evils of such a day as Friday are apparent to everybody who sincerely cares for the welfare of the country. Let us hope that the audacious threats of a similar movement in stocks, put forward by the organizers of this movement in gold, may be only the vain boasting and effrontery characteristic of the class.

Dr. N. A. Moses, formerly of North Carolina, respectfully tendered his services to the public to cure stammering or impediments in speech. He feels no hesitation in announcing that he can do it without fail, and will warrant a cure in all cases, if his rules and directions are strictly followed. The time required to effect a cure is generally from one to two hours, and his terms are reasonable. Dr. Moses will dispose of receipts to practice to others. He may be found at the National Hotel, room No. 55.

STAMMERING CURED.—We take pleasure in giving testimony to the favorable results of the system for the cure of stammering practiced by Dr. Moses, in behalf of which we append certificates from various persons, some of them gentlemen of high standing in this city. Dr. Moses brought several patients to our office before beginning to treat them, and certainly they stammered in a most painful degree, but in a few hours a very great change was wrought, as we witnessed, in their powers of speech—they STAMMERED NOT AT ALL.

Among others, we witnessed the improvement in the speech of young Mr. Cocke, and the little son of James M. Williamson, Esq. We cheerfully recommend Dr. Moses to all persons who stammer and would be relieved of the misfortune.

Dear Sir: My son, of the firm of Owen Jamar & Co., has suffered for the last two years with hydrocephalus, constipation and genitlility. A few months since he commenced using your Tonics, and they have regulated his system, cured his dyspepsia, and his general health is improving fast. He joins me in recommending them to the public for their great medicinal qualities.

Yours, &c., THOS. JAMAR.

Under these circumstances there is much to be said on both sides as to the propriety of the interference by the Secretary of the Treasury, which enriches one man and impoverishes another according to the moment when it is made known, but which relieves the merchant for the time from the embarrassment which the gambling bout has caused him. If it were possible for the government by any act within the scope of its power to destroy utterly the wealth of the men who make a livelihood by these speculations the achievement would meet, perhaps, with general applause, but if every one of them were annihilated in person as well as in estate to-day there can be no doubt that a new set would arise to-morrow, and that the evil we deplore would be continued as long as the absence of any fixed standard of value gives an opportunity for it.

From the Boston Advertiser (Republican), September 25.

To whisper suspicion against the credit of a firm in ordinary times, is accounted the highest crime, if any doubt attaches to its truth; but in the turmoil of Friday we observe numbers of prominent houses in New York subjects of gossip more or less scandalous; good names made light of, censured, and all considerations of honor, stability, and reputation disregarded in rumors and reports circulated among the brokers and flashed over the wires to every daily paper in the country. And not the least of these alarming and sickening scandals involves the government itself. The Secretary of the Treasury is not merely censured, but openly accused of corruption. The evils of such a day as Friday are apparent to everybody who sincerely cares for the welfare of the country. Let us hope that the audacious threats of a similar movement in stocks, put forward by the organizers of this movement in gold, may be only the vain boasting and effrontery characteristic of the class.

Marie Taglioni, once the most famous ballet dancer in the world, and since 1864 married to the Austrian nobleman Count Langen, is being hopelessly sick of consumption at Brunn, the capital of Moravia.

J. A. T. Stewart has sold twenty shawls this season worth $2,000 each, and one worth $5,700. One woman ran up a bill of $29,00 at his store in two months.

LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON.

The Virginia Legislature to Elect Senators.

Assassination of Rebel Generals in Cuba Denied.

The Iron Interest Want a Higher Tariff.

Senator Wilson Proposes to War on the Gold Gamblers.

THE VIRGINIA LEGISLATURE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—There seems to be no doubt but that the Virginia Legislature will at its next meeting, next week, elect U. S. Senators. The Attorney General, it is believed, has decided that the legislature can make such an election after ratifying the fifteenth amendment, on the ground that it will not be in the nature of legislation. The Lieutenant Governor of Virginia had an interview with the President to-day, and the latter informed him that Gen. Sherman had written a letter to Gen. Canby, stating that there would be no objections here to the election of Senators, and that the President acquiesced. Senator Wilson, who was consulted, said he should welcome the restoration of Virginia in any way consonant with the reconstruction acts. An election will therefore probably take place.

THE CUBAN REPUBLIC.

The legation of the Cuban republic here state that they have information showing that the recent reports of the assassination of two Cuban generals, and the placing of General Jordan in command of the revolutionists, are untrue. The legation, however, felt that the administration has decided to take no steps in Cuban affairs, especially none in the way of recognition.

THE IRON INTEREST.

A delegation representing the iron interests in Pittsburgh, Newark and New York, arrived here to-day, and had an interview with Secretary Boutwell, and also the President. They came to ask that the Secretary, in his forthcoming annual report, recommend that the duty on a certain class of imported steel be increased. The Secretary listened to their views and took a copy of their address. They say that under a construction of the present tariff one class of steel is admitted at a lower rate than Congress intended, which calls it to exam in lively competition with the home manufacturer.

SALES OF GOLD IN BALTIMORE.

The Secretary of the Treasury yesterday authorized the Collector of the port of Baltimore to sell $50,000 in gold per week to review the necessities of the business men of that city. The price is limited to one per cent above that quoted in New York.

THE GOLD GAMBLERS.

Senator Wilson says that he proposes at the next session of Congress to introduce a bill providing that any persons who shall engage in buying or selling gold, and shall fail to deliver the actual coin, shall be punished with a heavy fine and imprisonment. He thinks this would go far to break up the system of gold gambling which prevails in Wall street, and prevent the repetition of such scenes as were witnessed there last week.

THE HAYTIAN GUNBOAT.

Should the gunboat recently sold to the Haytian authorities by this Government not prove satisfactory to them after the trial of her qualities, the Navy Department will authorize the purchase money to be refunded and the vessel restored to service.

PERSIAN.

There was quite a large crowd of visitors at the Executive Mansion this morning, nearly all of whom were admitted to see the President. Gen. Farnsworth, of Illinois, and Gen. Tallmadge, of Virginia, had interviews.

NASHVILLE.

Emerson Etheridge is serenaded and makes a speech—Brownlow sinking—Fatal affray at Franklin—Negro shot at Fountain Head.

NASHVILLE, Sept. 29.—Hon. Emerson Etheridge was serenaded at the City Hotel to-night and made a brief speech in response. He congratulated the people on the overthrow of Radicalism in Tennessee, but earnestly counseled moderation and the cultivation of fraternal feelings all around. He was outspoken in his advocacy of broad and liberal principles, discrediting dead issues and advancing all those of the progressive spirit of the age. He favored the immediate calling of a convention by the Legislature and the immediate reorganization of all who were now disaffected. He was loudly applauded.

He will, however, express the opinion that law changes are needed for one.

Advice from Knoxville says that Senator Brownlow is confined to his bed by illness, and Foster, entertained he will not be able to take his seat in the Senate at the opening of Congress.

During a circus performance at Franklin, Ky., yesterday afternoon, the ex-governor Harper and some of his friends got into a fight with a number of other men, during which one of the latter was shot dead. One of Harper's sons was badly wounded. Harper immediately fled to Sumner county, in this State, pursued by ten mounted men, and took his seat in the Senate at the opening of Congress.

The State ticket was then nominated, as follows:

Secretary of State—Geo. Wm. Curtis, Comptroller—John C. Robinson, State Prison Inspector—Benj. D. Conover, Judges Court of Appeals—Present incumbents, Woodburn and Wilson.

It appears Gen. Sigel declined to accept any nomination, on the ground of ill health. A State Central Committee was then selected, and the convention adjourned.

VIRGINIA.

Hear's Opinion on the Senatorial Question.

RICHMOND, Sept. 29.—The opinion of Attorney General Hear's on the Senatorial question is published. It bears date of the 25th, and says: "After careful consideration, I am of opinion that the election of Senator T. C. Ruffin, of the State of South Carolina, to the winter on the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the Constitution of the United States, is a part of the action contemplated by Congress as preliminary to a restoration of a State to its full relations to the Government of the United States as one of the States of the Union."

The Senators thus elected would have no power or authority until the Senate of the United States should have passed upon the validity of their action and admitted them as members. The action of the Senate, however, is to me, to transcend the action which comes within the limited and qualified purposed requisite to reconstruction, but rather to be essential to the completeness of that action, and I think the military commander should not interfere or prevent it."

Georgia Politics.

A Washington dispatch says, letters have been received here from Georgia saying that there is a good prospect of a reunion of the Republican party in that State, and a compromise between the Republicans and the Democrats, the result of which will be the adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment by the State Legislature at its next meeting. Already some of the most prominent men of the contending parties have held consultation, with a view to secure the State to a firm position in the Union.

A grand barbecue comes off to-morrow for preparations for several thousand persons are being made.
